Stoughton's Bitters.
During the present sickly season, the use of STOUGHTON'S BITTERS, (imported from London) will be found of great service, as preventive to disease, especially where there is an infectious atmosphere and a predisposition in the habit to contagion. It eminently braces the constitution, and renovates the whole system. It may be used instead of spirits in water, tea, or other drink. It restores lost appetite, expels worms in children, and, if regularly used during the fall season, will prevent the ague and fever. In short, it only needs to be tried, to convince every one of its great efficacy.
These Bitters may be had, with copious directions, (prepared at the original warehouse in London) in quart bottles at one fourth of the former charge for the same in vials, at St. Snowden's Printing Office, Alexandria, where a bottle is constantly kept open for trial. Also, at

The President's Message.

WASHINGTON CITY,

OCTOBER 17.

This day, at 3 o'clock, the following MESSAGE was delivered to both Houses of Congress, by Mr. HARVEY, Secretary to the President.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States:

In calling you together, fellow citizens, at an earlier day than was contemplated by the act of the last session of Congress, I have not been insensible to the personal inconveniences necessarily resulting from an unexpected change in your arrangements; but matters of great public con-cernment have rendered this call necessary; and the interest you feel in these will supercede in your minds all private considerations.

Congress witnessed at their late session, the extraordinary agitation produced in the public mind by the suspension of our right of deposit, at the port of New Orleans, no assignment of another place having been made according to treaty. They were sensible that the continuation of that privation would be more injurious to our nation, than any consequences which could flow from any mode of redress. But reposing just confidence in the good faith of the government whose officer had committed the wrong, friendly and reasonable representations were resorted to, and the right of deposit was restored.

Previous however to this period, we had not been unaware of the danger to which our peace would be perpetually exposed, whilst so important a key to the commerce of the western country remained under foreign power. Difficulties too were presenting themselves as to the navigation of other streams, which arising within our territories, pass through those adjacent. Propositions had therefore been authorised for obtaining, on fair conditions, the sovereignty of New Orleans, and of other possessions in that quarter interesting to our quiet, to such extent as was deemed practicable; and the provisional appropriation of two millions of dollars, to be applied and accounted for by the President of the United States, intended as part of the price, was considered as conveying the sanction of Congress to the acquisition proposed.

The enlightened government of France saw, with just discernment, the importance to both nations of such liberal arrangements as might best and permanently promote the peace, friendship and interest of both: and the property and sovereignty of all Louisiana, which had been restored to them, has, on certain conditions, been transferred to the United States by instruments bearing date the 30th of April last.
When these shall have received the constitutional sanction of the Senate, they will, without delay, be communicated to the Representatives, also, for the exercise of their functions as to those conditions which are within the powers vested by the constitution in Congress. Whilst the property and sovereignty of the Mississippi and its waters secure an independent outlet for the produce of the western states, and an uncontrolled navigation through the whole course, free from collision with other powers, and the dangers to our peace from that source, the fertility of the country, its climate and extent, promise, in due season, important aids to our treasury, an ample provision for our posterity, and a wide spread for the blessings of freedom and equal laws.

With the wisdom of Congress it will rest to take those ulterior measures which may be necessary for the immediate occupation, and temporary government of the country; for its incorporation into our union; for rendering the change of government a blessing to our newly adopted brethren; for securing to them the rights of conscience and of property; for confirming to the Indian inhabitants their occupancy and self government; establishing friendly and commercial relations with them, and for ascertaining the geography of the country acquired.
Such materials for your information relative to its affairs in general, as the short space of time has permitted me to collect, will be laid before you when the subject shall be in a state for your consideration.

Another important acquisition of territory has also been made, since the last session of Congress. The friendly tribe of Kaskaskia Indians, with which we have never had a difference, reduced, by the wars and wants of savage life, to a few individuals unable to defend themselves against the neighbouring tribes, has transferred its country to the United States, reserving only for its members what is sufficient to maintain them, in an agricultural way. The considerations stipulated are, that we shall extend to them our patronage and protection, and give them certain annual aids, in money, in implements of agriculture, and other articles of their choice.

This country, among the most fertile within our limits, extending along the Mississippi from the mouth of the Illinois to, and up, the Ohio, though not so necessary as a barrier, since the acquisition of the other bank, may yet be well worthy of being laid open to immediate settlement, as its inhabitants may descend with rapidity in support of the lower country, should future circumstances expose that to foreign enterprize. As the stipulations, in this treaty also, involve matters within the competence of both houses only, it will be laid before Congress so soon as the Senate shall have advised its ratification.

With many of the other Indian tribes, improvements in agriculture and household manufacture, are advancing: and, with all, our peace and friendship are established on grounds much firmer than heretofore. The measures adopted of establishing trading houses among them and of furnishing them necessaries in exchange for their commodities, at such moderate prices as leave no grain, but cover us from loss has the most conciliatory and useful effect on them, and is that which will best secure their peace and good will.

The small vessels authorised by Congress, with a view to the Mediterranean service, have been sent into that sea; and will be able more effectually to confine the Tripolitan cruisers within their harbours, and supersede the necessity of convoy to our commerce in that quarter. They will sensibly lessen the expences of that service the ensuing year.

A further knowledge of the ground in the north eastern, and north western angles of the United States has evinced that the boundaries established by the treaty of Paris, between the British territories and ours in those parts, were too imperfectly described to be susceptible of execution. It has therefore been thought worthy of attention, for preserving and cherishing the harmony and useful intercourse subsisting between the two nations, to remove by timely arrangements what unfavourable incidents might otherwise render a ground of future misunderstanding. A convention has therefore been entered into, which provides for a practicable demarcation of those limits, to the satisfaction of both parties.

An account of the receipts and expenditures of the year ending the 30th of Sept. last, with the estimates for the service of the ensuing year, will be laid before you by the Secretary of the Treasury, so soon as the receipts of the last quarter shall be returned from the more distant states. It is already ascertained that the amount paid into the treasury, for that year, has been between eleven and twelve millions of dollars, and that the revenue, accrued during the same term, exceeds the sum counted on, as sufficient for our current expences, and to extinguish the public debt, within the period heretofore proposed.

The amount of debt paid, for the same year, is about three millions one hundred thousand dollars, exclusive of interest, and making, with the payment of the preceding year, a discharge of more than eight millions and an half of dollars of the principal of that debt, besides the accruing interest: and there remain in the treasury nearly six millions of dollars. Of these eight hundred and eighty thousand have been reserved for payment of the first instalment due, under the British Convention of January 8, 1802, and two millions are, what have been before mentioned, as placed by Congress under the power and accountability of the President, towards the price of New Orleans and other territories acquired, which, remaining untouched, are still applicable to that object, and go in diminution of the sum to be funded for it.

Should the acquisition of Louisiana be constitutionally confirmed and carried into effect a sum of nearly thirteen millions of dollars will then be added to our public debt, most of which is payable after fifteen years; before which term, the present existing debts will all be discharged, by the established operation of the sinking fund. When we contemplate the ordinary, annual, augmentation of impost from increasing population and wealth, the augmentation of the same revenue, by its extension to the new acquisition, and the economies which may still be introduced into our public expenditures, I cannot but hope that Congress, in reviewing their resources will find means to meet the intermediate interest of this additional debt, without recurring to new taxes, and applying to this object only the ordinary progression of our revenue. Its extraordinary increase, in times of foreign war, will be the proper and sufficient fund for any measures of safety or precaution, which that state of things may render necessary in our neutral position.

Remittances for the instalments of our foreign debt having been found practicable without loss, it has not been thought expedient to use the power, given by a former act of Congress, of converting them by reboans, and of redeeming, instead thereof, equal sums of domestic debt, although no difficulty was found in obtaining that accommodation.

The sum of fifty thousand dollars, appropriated by Congress for providing gun boats, remains unexpended. The favorable and peaceable turn of affairs on the Mississippi, rendered an immediate execution of that law unnecessary; and time was desirable, in order that the institution of that branch of our force might begin on models the most approved by experience. The same issue of events dispensed with a resort to the appropriation of a million and an half of dollars, contemplated for purposes which were effected by happier means.

We have seen with sincere concern the flame of war lighted up again in Europe, and nations with which we have the most friendly and useful relations, engaged in mutual destruction. While we regret the miseries in which we see others involved, let us bow with gratitude to that kind Providence, which inspiring with wisdom and moderation our late legislative councils, while placed under the urgency of the greatest wrong, guarded us from hastily entering into the sanguinary contest, and left us only to look on and to pity its ravages. These will be the heaviest on those immediately engaged, yet the nations pursuing peace will not be exempt from all evil.

In the course of this conflict let it be our endeavour as it is our interest and desire, to cultivate the friendship of the belligerent nations by every act of justice and of innocent kindness; to receive their armed vessels, with hospitality from the distresses of the sea, but to administer the means of annoyance to none; to establish in our harbours, such a police as may maintain law and order; to restrain our citizens from embarking individually in a war in which their country takes no part; to punish severely those persons, citizen or alien, who shall usurp the cover of our flag, for vessels not entitled to it, infecting thereby with suspicion those of real Americans, and committing us into controversies for the redress of wrongs not our own; to exact from every nation the observance, towards our vessels and citizens, of those principles and practices which all civilized people acknowledge; to merit the character of a just nation, and maintain that of an independent one, preferring every consequence to insult and habitual wrong. Congress will consider whether the existing laws enable us efficaciously to maintain this course with our citizens in all places and with others, while within the limits of our jurisdiction; and will give them the new modifications necessary for these objects. Some contraventions of right have already taken place both within our jurisdictional limits, and on the high seas.
The friendly disposition of the governments from whose agents they have proceeded, as well as their wisdom and regard for justice, leave us in reasonable expectation, that they will be redressed and prevented in future: and that no act will be countenance by them which threatens to disturb our friendly intercourse. Separated by a wide ocean from the nations of Europe, and from the political interests which entangle them, together, with productions and wants which render our commerce and friendship useful to them, and theirs to us, it cannot be the interest of any to assail us, nor ours to disturb them.

We should be most unwisely indeed were we to cast away the singular blessings of the position in which nature has placed us, the opportunity she has endowed us with of pursuing at a distance from foreign contentions, the paths of industry, peace, and happiness, of cultivating general friendship, and of bringing collisions of interest to the umpirage of reason, rather than of force? How desirable then must it be, in a government like ours, to see its citizens adopt individually the views, the interests, and the conduct which their country should pursue, divesting themselves of those passions and partialities, which tend to lessen useful friendships, and to embarrass and embroil us in the calamitous scenes of Europe. Confident, fellow citizens, that you will duly estimate the importance of neutral dispositions, towards the observance of neutral conduct, that you will be sensible how much it is our duty to look on the bloody arena spread before us, with commiseration indeed, but with no other will than to see it closed, I am persuaded you will cordially cherish these dispositions, in all discussions among yourselves, and in all communications with your constituents. And I anticipate with satisfaction the measures of wisdom, which the great interests written to his Prussian Majesty on the 25th May, to induce him to take a part in obtaining a change in the government of Switzerland. On the 7th of this month he received a letter, by M. de Moltke, President of the Council of State at Munchen, containing the reply of his Prussian Majesty, dated 22d July, and it was read in the Diet on the 8th instant. His Majesty replies most tenderly, and congratulates them upon the prospect of a definitive constitution, which shall secure their independence, and preserve their tranquillity. In quality of Sovereign of Neuchâtel, he promises to give his full concurrence in every measure for their peace and prosperity.

HANOVER, Aug. 9.
The result of the audience which our deputies had with the First Consul at Bruxelles, is still a secret. But we have reason to believe that he has consented to reduce the army of Hanover to 12,000 men. Several Hanoverian officers have gone into the Russian service.

STUTTGART, Aug. 14.
We learn from Ratisbon, that the negotiations for a new Concordat for Germany, progress favorably, and that the principal articles are agreed upon. But we are informed that the propositions of the Elector Archancellor are much more liberal than of the Imperial Minister. The Catholic States are very impatient on this subject.

BRUXELLES, Aug. 18.
The number of volunteer workmen increases daily and every encouragement is given them. At Grand, upon the Scheldt, and upon Bruges Canal, the works proceed with astonishing briskness. Before the end of the next month we shall have a very great number of gun-boats, and flat bottomed boats ready to launch. This example of patriotism, and zeal is imitated in all the departments of Belgium. Schimpfennick, ambassador of Batavia, will spend a week in this city, before he goes on to Paris.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 19.
The Khans of Brivan, Sus, and their neighbors, have sent ambassadors to complain of the encroachments of the Russians. They represent that the Russians have continued their ever since they have held the Crimea. The Porte has recommended patience.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 14.
Arrived, brig William, Hodsikiss, from Oporto, Left ship Hare, Worth, of N. Y. discharging; and a brig belonging to the north, from Philadelphia. Sailed from Oporto, 31st July, brig Hero, of West Point, (Mass.) commanded and manned by Negroes; for Philadelphia. Sept. 15, spoke ship South Carolina, Fisher, from Liverpool to Philadelphia.

The William brings accounts of the capture of the British packet from Lisbon to Falmouth, by the French. Three English merchantmen were likewise taken a few leagues from the coast of Portugal, one of them carried into Vigo, the capt. of which arrived at Oporto a few days before the William sailed; two of the captured vessels were under convoy.

The French army have made several motions towards the frontiers of Portugal (through Spain.) The inhabitants of the country appear much alarmed, being in expectation of a visit from them. This prospect occasioned the produce of Portugal suited to the British market, to fall rapidly.

A few miles from Monticello, there is a sign over the door of a tavern, kept by a certain Mr. E. Moore; of which the following is a description.

Mr. Adams is placed with his back on the people, at his feet the British Lion, couchant uncrowned; with his right hand Mr. Adams endeavors to tear the cap from the pole of Liberty, with the intention of substituting a crown which he holds in his left; out of his pocket hangs a label; Sedition and Alien Bills; Liberty alarmed and scarcely able to guard the ornamental part of her walking staff, is relieved by Jefferson who steps in profile, and arrests the arm of Adams; out of his pocket hangs the label Declaration of Independence.

Such are the witty and patriotic allusions of the Virginia Boniface. Such the libel on propriety and decency, suspended under the immediate eye of our most virtuous and philosophical President. And such is the striking example, hung out to all strangers, of the purity or our democratic manners, and the liberty enjoyed under democratic rulers.

Anti-Democrat.

HEALTH-OFFICE,

OCTOBER 18.

The Committee of Health report five deaths, for the 24 hours ending this morning at 10 o'clock.

They acknowledge with gratitude the receipt of THREE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-NINE DOLLARS from the Gentlemen of Fredericksburg and its vicinity, and Ten Dollars from Mr. Robert Abercrombie, as donations for the use of the Poor.

Not enjoying Executive Patronage, will account for our being this day behind hand with our opponent in the publication of the President's Communication to Congress. Hitherto whatever was important of a POLITICAL or PUBLIC NATURE, has made its first appearance in the "Advertiser."—Now, when the "Expositor," occasionally appears on a half sheet, and while on our paper we have its usual force, we are anticipated. Query.—How long must the Editor of the "Expositor" have possessed the Presidents' Message before it was delivered to Congress?

In some instances there appears a semblance between the modern French and the Romans of old. Tacitus tells us of the rapid successions and revolutions in the Roman empire, which, saving the cruelties and bloodshed by the late revolution, are somewhat like the progressions of France. The Romans, corrupted by luxury, vain by their achievements in war, and breathing a proud recollection, of what was due to a citizen, were incapable of bearing either unqualified slavery or perfect freedom. In some circumstances it was necessary for the new sovereign to restrain and controul such a people by the firmest nerves of power, while, at the same time, he gratified them with the idea of liberty. History can hardly furnish us with an instance, under this shew of liberty, of a more despotic monarch than Bonaparte. The nations of Europe, were he not kept in check by the English, may, with Cato, exclaim, "Why was this world made for Caesar?" Conquest, fear, distrust, and jealousy distract the neighbouring empires, which totter from their fabric—while the countryman of Theodore, King of Corsica, who died a bankrupt debtor in England, may be said to controul the vast continent of Europe!

A vessel has arrived at Newport, R. I. which put into that port in distress, from Ireland, with several passengers, who had escaped, as they alledge, the late persecutions. One of them has brought with him an antique sword, said to be the identical weapon with which Marshal Shomberg, King William the III's General fought, and which was found clinched in his hand when he was killed. This sword obtained the liberty of the emigrant, being purchased of him by Mr. Seers of that town, at the expense of emancipation from the captain of the vessel for his passage and expences, and may seen by the curious.

The subsequent letter, said to be written by the Chief Consul of France to the widow of the late Monarch of Etruria, is translated from the Courier de Londres of Aug. 2d. Ample ground is here afforded to infer the views of Bonaparte with regard to Great-Britain:

"I am made acquainted with the loss which happened to your Majesty, and most sincerely participate in your grief.—But God disposes of the lot of Empires as of the life of those who are placed at their head; and it is his will that we must conform to and adore in every misfortune.—Ah! I who am now sympathizing with you, am I not destined soon to close the course of my existence? Will tears be shed for me on that occasion? Men are so ungrateful! I have known your spouse. If he had not displayed, during his short reign, the qualities of a great king, he has at least shewn those which do honour to a private individual. But you will perhaps suggest, that the timidity of his conduct whilst upon the throne, sprang from the influence I had over his decisions. The minute ceremonies of religion, frequent communications with its ministers, appertain not to the man whose daily task is to contemplate the interests of his people. It is certainly proper to protect and disseminate religion, because it is the link between the sovereign and the people: but it ought not to impose any other yoke on the former, than that of some external practices; he should think only of the immensity of the power of the Supreme Being, of which his own is but the feeble image.
"I am persuaded, Madam, that your education has given you ability to appreciate, in its whole extent, what I have observed. In general you are accustomed to revere priests, whilst statesmen regard them as public instruments. You blindly give your belief to a doctrine which is only a means to confirm obedience on the part of the people. I complain of you, Madam, without any idea of blaming you; but those errors I point out, ought not to be permitted to creep into the mind of your son.—He will one day have to succeed to the reins of government which his father has quitted. This should seriously occupy your mind; and if he cannot draw, with propriety, rules of conduct from his father's administration, it belongs to me, his protector, to supervise his education. The event of my arrival at the Supreme Magistracy of a great country, ought to serve as a lesson to kings. My example ought to fix their power more firmly in their hands. I have demonstrated to them how mankind may be conducted; how its prejudices may be conquered, in order to render it submissive to the restraints which the state of society demands. Every regulation, all the systems which govern empires are destroyed by the ravages of time, and those of philanthropy. I have refixed every thing; I have regenerated every thing. I ought not to withdraw from this career of beneficence and glory. I cannot moreover, deliver the countries which are under private influence—a country of my own creation, a prince whom I ought to make accountable to me or my successors for the prosperity of his states, for the happiness of his subjects, I cannot, I say, deliver so many superior interests into the hands of inexperience and error.

"I propose to appoint then, Madam, a tutor to your son; a regent to his dominions. But I by no means intend to deprive you of the exquisite pleasure of receiving his caresses, nor of an acquaintance with his progress; you shall possess the title of Regent, which your connection with him claims. General Clarke, is to receive your orders for the internal affairs, which have no relation to the administration of the kingdom; but it is from me alone from whom he shall derive impulse, as it is to me that he shall give an account of his conduct. I will add, Madam, that faithful as you are to the principles of a religion which dictates the denial of one's self and submission to the superior powers specially established by the will of the Most High God, you ought to feel the less repugnance to consent to the propositions I have presumed to make. If, however, you think proper to refuse the deference which I solicit of you: if you cannot resolve to see your son confined to the able and faithful hands which shall guide his studies; I shall feel myself necessitated to take upon me the government of your estates. At the same time, if you have any solid objection to General Clarke, I am willing to confer with an envoy deputed by your Majesty, for the selection of a person both consonant to your taste and my own: but I must provide, that this choice do not fall upon any man in Italy."

Capt. Quin, arrived at Newburyport, on his passage from Berbice, spoke the English sloop of war Aspine, captain Auspin, who informed, that an English squadron had gone to take possession of Cayenne, Surinam, Berbice and Demerara. He likewise spoke a French privateer, both of which treated him well.

Capt. Sloane, who was spoke at sea October 3, twenty-days from Martinique confirms the above, and says further that Demerara, Surinam and Berbice, have actually been captured.

The following advertisement is copied from New Jersey Journal: "To be sold, on the 8th of July, 131 suits in law, the property of an eminent Attorney, about to retire from business.—Note, the clients are rich and obstinate!"

The Legislature of Tennessee; which convened on the 19th ult. has passed an act instructing their representation in Congress to aid in procuring the proposed amendment to the constitution of the United States, directing in future elections, of President and Vice-President a designation of the candidates.

Extra of a letter from Silas Dinsmore, Esq. Agent for the Chabaw nation, to his excellency Governor Claiborne; dated Chabaw Agency, 21st Aug. 1803.

Sir, I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 28th of June. I feel very happy in having been so fortunate as to anticipate your instructions, respecting the debt to the nation for depredations (on the wilderness road) as you will have seen by my letter of the 26th July, forwarded by my last express.

"The idea of affording help to the Mingoes, to execute their laws against the unruly, has had an astonishing effect. The proposal was so peaceful, friendly and reasonable, that they could not be offended. The warriors of the upper towns feel the subject so sensibly, that they are forming a society, of the different families, for the express purpose of recovering the stolen property, and punishing the offenders; one of the warriors who is at the head of the association, called on me, on the 14th inst. and requested that I would commit my talk to writing, in order that they may frequently have it read by the white men who live in the nation. A copy of the talk I gave to the warrior, is here inclosed."

"The following is the talk alluded to, in the above extract.
To the Mingoes, Chiefs and Warriors, of the upper Chabaw towns.

FRIENDS AND BROTHERS!—You know that it is with pain and sorrow I have heard of the outrages of your bad people, on the persons and property of travellers passing through your country on the public highway leading from Natchez to the Chickasaws. I have stated to you the danger, to your nation, of suffering those acts to pass unnoticed, or the perpetrators to go unpunished. I have assured you that an account of the plunders and thefts would be kept; and that your land would be answerable for the payment. I demand of you the punishment of those bloody men who have stained the path by attempting the lives of unoffending travellers. They all ought to be punished, and Vaux must be punished; but whether ask, nor will we accept of the punishment of an innocent person for the guilty. Some of your Mingoes and chiefs have expressed a wish that your own laws might be put in force and bad people punished; but they say they have not the power. This is too true. The Mingoes and Chiefs have been too long made the sport of the young and bad men. This must no longer be the case. They must have help.

BROTHERS.
I wish you to make one trial more to stop and correct the growing wrongs of which I complain. If your warriors will not support you, I will write and request your father to send his warriors who will help you, and cause your authority to be respected; and I can have no doubt that he will grant the request, as he has always been ready to oblige you in every thing, which was for your good.

Your friend and brother.

SILAS DINSMORE.

plainant, AGAINST
Owen Roberts and Daniel C.
Brent, Defendants.

The defendant not having entered his appearance and given security according to the act of assembly and the rules of this court, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court, upon affidavit, that the said Owen Roberts is not an inhabitant of this District, on motion of said complainant by his counsel, it is ordered, that the said defendant, Owen Roberts, do appear here on the first day of November term next, and enter his appearance to this suit, and give security for performing the decree of the court, and that the other defendant, Daniel C. Brent, do not pay away, convey, or secrete the debts by him owing to, or the estate or effects in his hands belonging, to the said absent defendant, Owen Roberts, until the further order or decree of this court; and that a copy of this order be forthwith published for two months successively, in one of the public newspa-

A MEDICINE extremely useful when Jaundicy and Bilious Complaints are so prevalent among the citizens of America and the West Indies. They are a useful and efficacious Medicine for curing Jaundicy and Bilious disorders, and removing that sinking, faint, distressed feeling at the stomach, difficulty of breathing, loss of appetite, and sleepy, dull heaviness in the forepart of the day, weakness and trembling of the limbs, dizziness of the head, and yellowness of countenance, complaints so common to jaundicy and bilious people.

Also removing constipation of the bowels, obstructions of urine, choleric complaints, pukings and purgings, indigestion, sick head ache, rheumatic complaints, &c. (which arise from a collection of four, bilious matter in the stomach) and at length restoring the constitution to strength and vigor.

They are also found very useful to carry off worms, and cure ricketty children, and may be used with safety in all constitutions, ages and sexes.

The many cures that have been effected in New England, by the above medicine, (as may be seen in the bills) prevent the necessity of further recommendation.

Wheaton's Patent Itch Ointment.

The only medicine in the world which will certainly cure the ITCH, without having in it any thing either dangerous or disagreeable; it being composed mostly of ingredients never before discovered or used in that disorder. One box cures a person, and there need be no waiting after the use of it, as the skin is generally left cleaner and smoother after the use of it than before.

The Sale of the property advertised on the 18th of August last by us, in pursuance of the decree of the circuit court of the district of Columbia, for the county of Alexandria, at the last June term of the said court, and in pursuance of the last will and testament of Lewis Hopkins, deceased, to take place on this day at the house of Francis Daniel, at the Little Falls of the Potomac, is unavoidably postponed until Saturday the 12th day of November next, at which place and on which day, if fair, it not the next fair day, will possibly be sold by us, at public auction, to the highest bidder for ready money.

The following Property, viz.

One undivided third part of 207 acres of Land, in the said district, near the said Little Falls, upon which are Merchant Mills, with three pair of French burr mill stones, and every necessary and convenient machinery for manufacturing flour to the best advantage; also a brewery and distillery, miller's house, a brewer and distiller's house and sundry other improvements. This property will be shown to any person who may incline to purchase it, by the said Francis Daniel, at any time before the sale.

A tract of Land in Fairfax county, about three miles from the said Little Falls, containing 207 acres, upon which is a dwelling house, in which Mrs. Susan Wren lives, and sundry other improvements; about two thirds of this land are cleared, and the remainder in wood; it is good farming land. Mr. William Waters, who lives near it, will show this land to any person or persons who may incline to purchase it, at any time previous to the sale.

Mrs. Susan Wren, who was the widow of the said Lewis Hopkins, has a right of dower in the afore said property. The sale will commence at twelve o'clock.

Twelve Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber on the 21st inst. a negro man named GEORGE, calls himself George Dart. He is about 38 years of age, five feet nine or ten inches high, slender made, very dark complexion, and shows his teeth very plain before, which are very white; he is very fond of spirited liquors, and plays on the fiddle: had on a blue round about jacket and an old pair of cloth trousers. He was in Alexandria on the 21st inst. on board of a schooner bound to the West Indies, chartered by Mr. John Donlop of George Town, if he is not gone in the said sch'r I expect he is now in that place. All masters of vessels, and others are cautioned against harboring or carrying off the said fellow at their peril. The above reward will be given for securing him in any jail so that I get him again, or upon delivering him to the subscriber, with all reasonable charges paid.
